Christmas Concert

Carols from rural England

1700–1900

including some for all to sing

We think of Christmas as a timeless tradition, perhaps going back to mediæval days. But many familiar elements go little further than the Victorian period, and that applies to many of the most popular Christmas carols.

This evening we will take you back to earlier times, to hear again Christmas hymns, carols and settings that were sung on the village green, around the hearth, and sometimes in church, in a different and more rural England.

Admission £8, to include Glühwein and Stollen
